New social app offers anonymity

(NY Times) From Facebook to Twitter to Instagram and Google, many big Internet successes depend on coaxing people into sharing every last bit of information about themselves and their lives.

A five-week old social app, Secret, is testing the limits of just how much sharing Silicon Valley thinks is a good thing. That's because the sharing is done anonymously. And, as it turns out, much of the chatter is about Silicon Valley itself — offering a rare, unvarnished look at the ambitions, disappointments, rivalries, jealousies and obsessions of the engineers and entrepreneurs who live and work there.

Secret, like a number of other recent apps, connects people anonymously through their address books. Messages appear only as from "friend" or "friend of friend." Juicy posts that receive a lot of likes or comments also appear occasionally, identified simply by the city or state where they originated. Secret's makers do not reveal download figures, and it is not highly ranked on iTunes charts. But since the service was introduced less than two months ago, it has gained popularity among early adopters and particularly among the tech crowd.

Many of the posts on Secret border on the mundane. But they can also offer a hotbed of Silicon Valley gossip. Postings express frustrations about valley culture, the struggle of raising money, put forth insider-y tidbits and even report the occasional Mark Zuckerberg sighting.

Malaysia turns to F.B.I. for help in plane inquiry

SEPANG, Malaysia (NY Times) — The Malaysian authorities have asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation for help in recovering data that was deleted from a home flight simulator belonging to one of the pilots of the missing Malaysia Airlines jet, in the hope that it will provide some clue to what happened to the plane.

The expansion of the American role in the investigation came as governments struggled to narrow down the vast search zone for the plane, which stretches across two hemispheres, and as relatives of some of the 227 missing passengers angrily criticized the Malaysian government's handling of the so-far fruitless hunt.

Investigators have said the plane's extraordinary diversion from its intended course was probably carried out by someone on the plane who had aviation experience. Attention has focused on the two pilots, Capt. Zaharie Ahmad Shah, 53, and his junior officer, Fariq Abdul Hamid, 27. The Malaysian police, who found that Mr. Zaharie had built a flight simulator in his home, said on Wednesday that some data was erased from the simulator on Feb. 3, more than a month before the ill-fated flight.

Ukraine to pull all forces from Crimea region

SEVASTOPOL, Crimea (NY Times) — Bowing to the reality of the Russian military occupation of Crimea a day after Russia announced it was annexing the disputed peninsula, the Ukrainian government said on Wednesday that it had drawn up plans to evacuate all of its military personnel and their families and was prepared to relocate as many as 25,000 of them to mainland Ukraine.

Thousands of Ukrainian soldiers and sailors have been trapped on military bases and other installations here for more than two weeks, surrounded by heavily armed Russian military forces and loosely organized local militia.

While the provisional government in Kiev has insisted that Russia's annexation of Crimea is illegal and has appealed to international supporters for help, the evacuation announcement by the head of the national security council, Andriy Parubiy, effectively amounted to a surrender of Crimea, at least from a military standpoint.

It came hours after militiamen, backed by Russian forces, seized the headquarters of the Ukrainian navy in Sevastopol and detained its commander.

Officers of Russia's Black Sea Fleet, which is also headquartered here, later entered the base through its main gates as Ukrainian military personnel streamed out carrying clothing and other personal belongings.

White House plays to young in health care push

WASHINGTON (NY Times) — Russian troops were rolling through Crimea when Denis R. McDonough, the White House chief of staff and a foreign policy expert, was deployed on a mission to do media outreach. But the focus of McDonough's calls to local talk radio stations was not geopolitical tensions in Eastern Europe, it was health care.

McDonough chatted with Andy Baskin and Jeff Phelps, hosts of a popular sports talk radio program on WKRK-FM (92.3) in Cleveland, about the coming N.F.L. draft, basketball at the White House and his days playing college football in Minnesota. McDonough then pitched a new website featuring games, videos and superstar athletes explaining the benefits of health insurance: a sports-themed portal to HealthCare.gov.

"We've all seen it happen," said McDonough, promoting the portal, GamePlan4Me, to the hosts of "Baskin & Phelps" and their mostly young, mostly male audience. "Somebody's playing hoops, and they blow out a knee or something. And then all of a sudden, if you don't have health care, you're going to bankrupt yourself."

Convincing millions of young people — especially African-Americans and Latinos — to buy insurance through HealthCare.gov is consuming every spare moment at the White House as President Obama and his aides race against a March 31 deadline, when enrollment ends for the year. They are waging their final public relations push with a zeal that underscores how critical success is for Obama's political legacy, and how far behind they remain.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the Site Evaluation Committee for the State of New Hampshire will conduct a public meeting on April 7, 2014 at 6 PM. The meeting shall be held at the Littleton Opera House, 2 Union Street in Littleton, New Hampshire.

Docket Number 2014-03

Motion of Granite Reliable Power, LLC to Amend a Certificate of Site and Facility with Request for Expedited Relief

Background

On March 12, 2014, Granite Reliable Power, LLC (Applicant) filed a Motion to Amend a Certificate of Site and Facility (Motion) with the New Hampshire Site Evaluation Committee (Committee). The Motion requests that the Committee amend certain conditions contained in the Certificate of Site and Facility issued in NHSEC Docket No. 2009-04, Application of Granite Reliable Power, LLC, on July 15, 2009 (Certificate).

Nature and Location of Facility and the Proposed Amendment

On July 15, 2009, the Committee granted a Certificate to the Applicant for the siting, construction and operation of a 99 MW wind powered electric generation facility consisting of 33 wind turbines on private lands located in Dixville, Erving's Location, Millsfield, Odell and the Town of Dummer in Coos County (Facility). The Facility is fully constructed and commercially operating. The Certificate imposed numerous conditions pertaining to the construction and operation of the Facility. A number of conditions were incorporated into the Certificate through a High Elevation Mitigation Settlement Agreement. Included within the High Elevation Mitigation Settlement Agreement, Section A, Paragraph 5, and incorporated in the Certificate was a condition stating:

Within the Retained Land on Mt Kelsey, only those trees necessary for project construction will be cut. Once construction is completed, there shall be no commercial timber harvesting in this area. After project construction the roadway shall be revegetated so that the roadbed is limited to 12 feet in width.

In its Motion the Applicant asserts that it has complied with all conditions contained within the High Elevation Mitigation Settlement Agreement. However, the Applicant asserts that the maintenance requirements of the Facility necessitate the repeated and periodic disturbance of the revegetated areas along the roadbed to accommodate heavy construction equipment. The Applicant seeks to amend the Certificate to replace the road width condition with a Revised High Elevation Restoration Plan that will require that road widths be reduced generally to 16 feet. In addition the Revised High Elevation Restoration Plan includes additional requirements pertaining to: 1) minimization of temporary and permanent disturbances; 2) restricted access; 3) stabilization and revegetation (including requirements pertaining to grading, soil preparation, tree seedlings, and mulch for moisture retention and soil stabilization); 4) monitoring, and; 5) maintenance.

The Applicant asserts that expedited relief is necessary in order to undertake the requirements of the Revised High Elevation Restoration Plan during the growing season.

The Motion and other information pertaining to this matter may be reviewed during business hours at the Office of the Chairman of the Site Evaluation Committee located at:

New Hampshire Department of Environmental Services
29 Hazen Drive
Concord N.H. 03301
