Dear Ms. Murray:

New Hampshire is facing a serious energy crisis. There is no question we need new energy sources that the people of this state can afford. One proposal that is worthy of support is the SEA-3 upgrades that will allow for domestic propane to reach our state. For thousands of people in NH, propane is the energy source used for heating homes. With the cost of propane imported from foreign countries on the rise, getting more domestic propane will help a great deal.

Additionally, there isn't the need to build a new facility because the Newington site has been operations for dozens of years. The upgrades are minimal and can be implemented in short order. That is good because the economic benefits will be felt rather quickly.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Gustavson
