that will be fine.

I do want to be sure that the protocols for testing are correct and that everyone realizes that right now the time with the most noise is at night. I can't imagine anyone wanting to be out here at that time ,but that is the time it is the worst.

Mrs. Berwick-

Thank you for sending these notifications. The measurement protocol has been finalized, so we can begin to schedule measurements based upon the conditions in the protocol, so that we can gather information in response to your complaints.

When I was at your house on February 12, we discussed the post construction monitoring that is required by the rules (separate from the complaint monitoring) and you said that you are fine with the monitoring being done at your property. Do you have any problem with Antrim Wind staff or its contractor contacting you directly to set that up? Please let me know.

Sincerely,

Pam

Hi Pam, I am sorry that I haven't been sending these regularly. I did see Lisa's email about not meeting until this coming week about the protocols, so I figured I could group some together.

This one is from last night (or actually early this morning 2/22- 12:38am)

Hi Pam, Thank you for coming yesterday. we actually had a snow day from school, so I want to send these while I can. I didn't keep a record, but there were a few times when it was so bad that I did take screenshots of my phone's deciblemeter . I'm hoping these can help Mr. Tocci. These two were taking on Jan 1st. I believe it was 10:47 pm. This night was extremely disturbing, and you can see how it had these really loud peaks. This was one of the times when I really felt it had to be more than just the windmills, but it wasn't. I've added the video from Monday evening, but I do not have a time on that .And the one reading 56 decibels if from last night at 10:54 , for that one all I did was open the bedroom window and hold my phone there. I will do my best to track when it is really bad and send them to you. I really do thank you for coming and helping.
