Dear Chairman Ignatius and SEC Committee Members:

You have recently received 31 letters that appear to be identical or nearly identical from companies that are, it would appear, members of the Green Alliance. All of the letters were supporting re-opening the Antrim Wind docket.

The Green Alliance's web site describes Eolian Renewable Energy as a "business partner" in encouraging various members to communicate with the SEC.

There is, of course, nothing wrong with supporting a "business partner"; but I hope/trust the SEC will continue to listen to the citizens of Antrim and other impacted communities first and foremost versus companies, or a group of companies, who are supporting a "business partner."

The SEC's initial decision was sound and remains so based on the criteria you used to render the decision. No amount of lobbying from people who, it would appear, have economic incentives {i.e. "business partners"} to support industrial wind in communities they don't live in changes that fact.

Thank you for your time and consideration.
