EXHIBIT A
Government borrowing
eats into Social Security

To the Editor: Any bank employee can tell you that a bank can add to its bottom line by lending money, not by keeping it.

However, our government, in its policy to just give away, seems to have missed that.

To date, Congress has borrowed $2.5 trillion from the Social Security Trust Fund. This is money that would be available for other uses. It is also money that should have been invested.

Many public women remain in dangerous situations, either because of money or because of survival. Many private women remain in dangerous situations, either because of money or because of survival. Many domestic violence shelters are overcrowded; many women are available to work.

The PSW Trust Fund could support every shelter in the state.
