Subject: anti-Northern Pass

Even if Northern Pass buries its lines, they will need to keep trees and brush from growing there again, since they will have to service it occasionally, and obviously the trees etc. would be done away with when they install it. So above ground or underground, it would be a disaster. I lived in FL for 22 years. As much as I love the state I would think twice about visiting if I lived elsewhere. There is no reason I'd come except to see the pristine environment, since I never skied or participated in any winter sports.
