The Northern Pass will not serve New Hampshire and will harm our tourism, natural environment, and wildlife. Major environmental and conservation organizations in the state of New Hampshire oppose the project. The project is designed to fix a problem that does not exist since New Hampshire already generates more power than it uses and the demand for electricity is trending downward. New Hampshire consumers will pay the price of construction of this project on their energy bills, already too high. Claims of job creation are exaggerated as many will require highly skilled laborers in specific technologies and others will be temporary. There is no economic benefit to local communities, as claimed, as the project will harm local tourism, real estate values, and energy economies.
