I cannot believe that this is still under consideration. There is so much resentment against it and so many have made good sound arguments. If this is allowed to go through at least it should be buried. Why should the small person like myself be forced to take a huge loss on their home investment of a lifetime for a for-profit entity. This is value we need for retirement. Interest on our savings is not keeping up with inflation.

In our case, I would go to sleep at night, if there is still daylight, and in the morning and look out my bedroom window at a huge 88-foot tower and it would also be seen from the kitchen and dining room windows. An 100-foot tower and a 106-foot tower would be seen out our West windows which include our living room windows. We're only talking about 150 to 200 feet away on one.
