

SEC COMMENTS COLLECTION

SECDocket	2015-06 Northern Pass Transmission - Eversource
CommenterName	Michael Long
CommenterCity	Franklin
DateReceived	07-05-2017

CommenterWords

I live in Franklin, NH. Many in Franklin depend on tourism for employment. While it will generate a small # of jobs, most will go to out of staters, because most of the jobs created will be short term to erect NP, and the support (long-term) jobs will be minuscule. However, the impact to our environment, and natural beauty of our state will last the rest of our lives, and our children's lives. For what? So the Gov't of Quebec can make money? So Eversource can get a tiny share? And NH's tiny increment to tax base? Let them bury it under the highway (entire state) and pay some real tax, instead of erecting gigantic ugly power towers. Its insane to me the US govt would even consider this. You are letting an external govt source our energy, increasing our dependence on foreign govts, just so those in NYC can get cheaper power for the short term. There are many US projects to produce power for NYC that will lose their funding and momentum if NP goes thru. Bury the lines, which hopefully will kill this whole thing. But if it does get buried then at least NH will make real tax revenue and no ugly power towers.