To the Site Evaluation Committee:

We live near Turtletown Pond Conservation Area in East Concord, and often go there to enjoy the surroundings. We are concerned about the adverse impact of building bigger towers at the pond. During construction of these towers, there would be temporary disruption to the habitat and to the creatures who make it their home. Once the towers are built, their presence is a permanent degradation of the environment and a lasting scar on the landscape we have come to love.

Is this truly the only and best way to bring increased power to the New England Power Grid? If the SEC finds this to be the case, then we urge that the lines be buried.

Thank you for considering our comments.
