I am against the Northern Pass. I would support it only if they bury all the lines. I will be within 100 feet of a tower base that is in a field. I see no reason why it can't continue to be buried as it is being buried to Ashland, which is only three miles or less for me.

The electric companies stand to make long term profits and since no one has gone back and buried lines after installing above ground transmission lines, this is our only chance to have them do it now.
