I completely oppose the northern pass. It's economic benefit does not outweigh the negative impact it has on the environment in general, especially in New Hampshire. I oppose putting the northern pass on massive towers through out state, and Concord in particular. New Hampshire is known for its "quaint" beauty and small towns, these huge towers would completely ruin that. If it's going to happen I ask that the pass be buried underground, certainly not on towers tower than most buildings. Do the greedy people who support these towers (and the pass in general) not have any pride for where we live?
