Good afternoon, I live at the end of Farmwood Rd. The Northern Pass is slated to track along the existing power lines just beyond the end of Farmwood Rd. As I understand it, they will be very close to the residential side of the right of way.

If you won't bury the line, it would only make sense to move it as far from the residential area as possible. There is a vast amount of room along the right of way to move the towers closer to the Oak Hill Substation. This will have no consequence other homes.

The Northern Pass will significantly decrease the value of my property. How do I get that back? Will the city abait my taxes as a result of the new lower value of my home? Has this been factored in to the cost?
