If the people who live in New Hampshire have stated they do not want it, and clearly they have, what right does ANYONE who does not live here have to say anything about it? None! It is detrimental to our tourism, it is detrimental to our utility bills and it opens the door for corporations to use the 'Imminent Domain' laws for profit with out any safe guard for the people. This should have been tossed out ages ago. The only people who really want this dinosaur of an idea are those who live outside the state and stand to profit from it. This issue has been drawn out so long, the use of renewable energy has out paced the claim of any benefit even for States actually receiving the electricity. NO to the Northern Pass. It is no longer a relevant source of power for anyone.
