Dear Pamela Monroe,

It may seem odd to receive a note from San Miguel de Allende, Mexico regarding the Northern Pass transmission lines. However, as a former resident of N.H. who has frequented the pristine territories through which the transmission lines are intended to follow, I must lodge, even from such a distance, a vehement protest.

To prefer the value of convenience, economics or efficiencies over the perpetuity of such a special environment robs current and future generations of a far more precious commodity. Once ruined, this special environment in New Hampshire will never recover.

I have seen this story all over the world. Please, you can do better.

Most sincerely,

Dale Braiman
