I am NOT a bot.

This project does not benefit New Hampshire..We've seen this picture before from large corporations and the evidence points to more of the same. But it does benefit certain individuals who stand to gain enormous sums of money, including Gov Sununu's brother (and likely the Gov himself). Will they divest from any investments related to Energy Transfer, or related shell corporations? New Hampshire economy depends on maintaining it as one of the last clean and picturesque environments on the planet. Like pipeilnes, the jobs are temporary so there is no sustainable economic benefit. Only short-term gain for a few. Have you really not made enough with a massive new tax break? There is no accountability and no civic/social responsibility. All there is is more money for a few people. NIBY.

Come up with a sustainable economic plan that benefits the people of New Hampshire without destroying our natural resources and trampling on our property rights.. Then we can talk.
