Fearful that profit motives will sell short the ultimate motives that make our state exceptional... The eternal beauty that nature provides, and our state's commitment toward protecting it; our historic resistance toward taking short term and short sighted profits; our stubborn commitment toward protecting individual rights; and our willingness to listen to people, and hear people and avoid corporate manipulation. These principles have contributed markedly toward New Hampshire's prominence in our nation, and I have a hard time believing (accepting) that the short sighted wisdom, embodied by the Northern Pass, could prevail... That said, I fear if it does, the loss of our ability to protect, and pass along the wise and distinctive values embraced by our state to our children, and to others who benefit from our state's exceptional and distinctive identity.
