NH has been my home for my 68 years except for a stint in FL from ages 14-36. (My husband didn't want to move.) The thing I always loved most about it were its trees and forests This is my home. Had the trees been removed before I moved back, I might have moved elsewhere in NH.

Secondly, they say the Pipeline will not destroy NH's landscape. Give me a break. How many people are that stupid?? They have to raze dome trees to lay the damn pipeline, then keep the trees cut to service it.

Who wants to visit stripped mountains. I would not. There goes tourism. What have we got left? Cheaper no-tax groceries?Then property taxes go even higher because we don't have the revenue from torism.People will leave the state because they cannot afford to stay. And we're broke and also back to 1950.

THINK.
